A Business-Like Message.

President McKinley's message to Congress urging the adoption of measures for the relief of distressed Americans in Cuba is confined to the topic immediately in hand, and does not digress to bring other issues relating to the war in the island into the situation. Thus the message lacks in those sensational features which some seem to have expected, which might seriously complicate matters and hinder the effort to relieve the suffering citizens of the United States. It is evidently the President's intention to postpone any further demonstrations of policy until Mr. Calhoun's report has been received, or such information has been obtained from him as will point unmistakably to the need of intervention. A less conservative course at this particular time might readily set the country into a ferment. When the time comes for action, when the best information obtainable is received and digested, it is now practically certain that the President will announce himself in such terms that the popular sentiment will be fully satisfied. Meanwhile the relief work outlined in the message of today can proceed. One suggestion that the President makes is worthy of special attention: he urges that there be set aside out of the appropriation for relief a certain sum to aid in bringing Americans now in Cuba back to their homes in this country. This is a practical step that will doubtless lessen the need of further appropriations for relief such as that about to be extended.

Holding Together.

Silver wins in Florida. The Senator-elect from that state is prompt to renew his allegiance to the principles of the Chicago platform, and singles out silver for a special pledge. The Bryan democracy is standing firm everywhere. In Ohio, in Virginia, in Kentucky, the state campaigns are shaping themselves on national issues Delegates to the democratic conventions are to be chosen on the basis of the number of votes cast for Mr. Bryan last year. The gold democrats are thus excluded. The maneuvering of Tammany in New York and that of Mr. Gorman in Maryland are not distasteful to the silver leaders. Mr. Bryan and his nearest advisers know that they can get Mr. Sheehan and Mr. Gorman any time they may need them in their bus-Democracy means silver, for this year and for next, and for 1900 unless affairs take such shape between now and the rext presidential campaign as to force something else to the front as silver itself was forced to the front last year.

In the face of this show of compactness in the silver organization, can the sound money organization afford to break ranks. even for a season? Should it not stand as firm as the opposition? If it does not, will it not play at once into the hands of the opposition? If, for any reason, Ohio, New York, Maryland and Kentucky, all of which were carried for sound money last year, should this year be carried under silver leadership, will not the cause of sound money receive a set-back?

So far as Congress is concerned, the financial question is still in abeyance. Nothing but the tariff will be dealt with at this session. But when Congress meet next winter the financial question will be in order and will be taken up. By that time the special commissioners sent abroad in the interests of international bimetallism will have returned and reported to the President, and on the strength of that report, as guided also by other considerations, the President will be ready to make some suggestions to Congress. Would it help the cause of sound money for the friends of silver to be able to point out that at the pells in November a number of states which last year had voted for sound money had now reversed that decision?

If the sound money organization is broken up, or even is impaired, before Congress has had time to deal with the money question, the reason for its original appearance will be difficult for people of reflection to

The Desperate Sugar Trust.

Made desperate by the clear prospect that the Senate will reject the sugar schedule now written in the tariff bill, the Trust is now resorting to a species of black-mail to beat down the opposition. Certain senators who have announced their antagonism to the iniquitous section dictated by the Trust have been plainly given to understand that unless they withdraw their objections they will find it impossible to secure action on items in which they are interested. The Trust and its agents, in other words, are playing section against section and paragraph against paragraph, in the hope of scaring the whole field into accepting the Trust's own clauses. But it is apparent at this stage that the opposition will resist this process, and that the threatened loss of rates on specific commodities will not deter honest senators from doing their duty by the whole coun-

The President's message admits a condition of famine and destitution in Cuba, but pefrains from indulging in any theories as to what caused it.

The People Speak. Last night's popular demonstration in behalf of Cuba supplies abundant cause for pride and congratulation. The audience was overflowing and thoroughly representative; the speeches and the resolutions were pitched in the key of both patriotic sentiment and practical duty. The whole Cuban case was never better stated.

The value of this demonstration could not easily be overestimated. There is probably not a city in the country where a similar one could not tonight be held but such deliverances at the capital here, participated in by men of all parties high in office, and applauded by men and women from all sections, give to this occasion a meaning and eignificance truly national. It is as if the country itself had spoken, as it did formally through Congress last year, and as it appears to be on the eve of doing through Congress again.

First of all, it will help to open the eyes of people abroad to the real situation here. Star last week, quoting from an English periodical, showed that the United States is held jointly responsible with Spain scross the sea for the reign of murder and terror in Cuba. We are twitted with being greatly moved by the atrocities committed in Crete and Armenia, thousands of miles away, while constructively a participant in atrocities quite as hideous and inhuman committed right at our doors. We are thus charged with both inhumanity and hy-

The only reply to this is the reply that was made at the Columbia Theater last night. The name of the official responsible for the bringing of the accusation against the United States was twice mentioned and both times vigorously hissed. It is not agreeable to hear hissed the name of a man who has filled the highest office in the government, but when it is necessary to defend the people themselves against a charge so humiliating, and, by them, so undeserved, it is entirely proper that the truth, even at his expense, should come

And Mr. Cleveland is responsible. It is true that he cannot be charged with inconsistency. The news from Crete and Armenia never moved him. He was undoubtedly consistent. His sympathy with General Weyler in Cuba, who was butchering people all over the island, was directly in line with his sympathy with Mrs. Dominis in Hawaii, who had formulated for herself the policy of beheading all of her opponents when Mr. Cleveland should succeed in restoring her to power. But Mr. Cleveland's consistency made the people of the country appear inconsistent. They were as anxious that butchery should be stopped in Cuba as in Crete and Armenia; but Mr. Cleveland, who was elected to be their servant and representative, chose to make himself their boss and the cause of their revilement. He flatly refused to execute their will

The proposition that the United States cannot take humane action in this business without incurring responsibility for war with Spain is nonsense. The point is hardly worth noticing, for a nation which in such circumstances would be deterred by such a consideration would not be worth; of respect. It would not enjoy its own selfrespect. But war is not on the horizon. The question is one of peace. What the United States desires, in the interests of humanity, is peace in Cuba, and as Spain has shown herself unable to secure that by the torch and the sword, she should be firmly urged to adopt some other policy, or quit the island. The fact that she has so far refused to extinguish the torch or sheathe the sword shows that they are her only reliance, and that her cause is lost.

Strike of the New York Tailors. The strike of the New York tailors, started yesterday, involves an army of workmen and a vastly greater number of people through those dependent upon them. It bids fair at the outset to be one of the largest local trade union movements of several years, though there is no probability of its spreading to other trades or cities. One estimate places the number of tailors who are expected to be on strike within a few days at 36,000. The issue is simple. The strikers demand more pay than they now receive. They work from fourteen to sixteen hours a day for from three to five dollars a week. They demand from nine to twelve dollars as a week's pay. At the average increase asked by the strikers the total advance that would be paid out weekly if their pleas were granted would amount to about $234,000. These figures indicate the proportions of this latest labor disturbance. Fortunately the trade involved is such that the strike will not seriously interfere with the city's ordinary necessities.

General Weyler would doubtless regard it as only an act of international courtesy if a refusal to talk for publication be made a condition of the liberation of American citizens from Cuba.

The Sultan is evidently ambitious to make up for Turkey's failure to do anything conspicuous. in the revival of the Olympian games.

Another Sugar Scandal.

From the New York Herald. From the New York Herald.

From our Washington dispatch this morning it appears that the Sugar Trust is to resort to its old tactics of "holding up" the entire Tariff bill in order to get through the schedule whose favoritism to the Trust has aroused so much popular indignation.

This may well lead to another Senatorial investigation and give rise to a scandal worse than that of 1804, but that it can result in the adoption of the outrageous sugar schedule now before the Senate is not to be believed. McKnew's Daily Letter.
